Frontier Advocacy

Nerves running. Adrenalin pounding. Palms sweating. Our eyes flittered nervously back and forth. This was it. Dr Brendan Nelson, Director of the Australian War Memorial, sat across from us at an enormous boardroom table. Behind him through the window, looming over the lush lawns, stood the Memorial. Watching. Listening. We were all set: Ten students, papers, books, laptops, mind-maps and speaking notes. We'd spent hours, days, weeks and months preparing. We were ready. Taylor fired the opening shot, "Dr Nelson, how do you define a war, here at the War Memorial?"

Five months earlier, we had been examining some tough questions in Aboriginal Studies. Settlement? Contact? Colonisation? Invasion? Are we a nation built on peace and democracy, or violent dispossession? Was it really a war? Frontier Wars? So we wondered aloud, "If it was war, what does the Australian War Memorial say?" We found some words on the website, but not a word within the Memorial. Our curiosity rose and we began to investigate. Why is this war not recognised? Is the general public aware that this eminent piece of our history is missing? What are the different perspectives on this? In the end it came down to one final, looming question: what are we going to do about it? We decided to write to Dr Nelson.

To our surprise, and his credit, Dr Nelson wrote back with an extremely detailed and personalised response. We disagreed with almost all of what he said, but we had been heard. We had argued that the Memorial should commemorate the Frontier Wars and we requested a face-to-face meeting. To our even greater surprise, he agreed to meet.

The Australian War Memorial is the most iconic institution commemorating Australia's war history. It remembers our fallen heroes. The Memorial's charter notes its aim to "assist visitors to understand the Australian experience of war" and "engage all members of the Australian community". We had come to find out what sets this war apart from all the others.

We knew that Dr Nelson had advocated and proactively changed the Memorial for the benefit of Australian society, upholding its legislation and charter. The For Country For Nation exhibit is a fine example of this. We were going to suggest to Dr Nelson that, despite this good work, he has more to do to fully uphold the Memorial's charter.

In preparation for the meeting, we divided a range of different jobs among our group. We worked productively and effectively as a team, collaborating on ideas and helping each other. We built valuable communication skills in writing and in many verbal forms.

We invited guests to a 'rehearsal' and learnt how to take constructive criticism then apply it to benefit the overall experience and enhance our impact. And, most importantly, we learnt about advocacy and what it takes to make a real change.

So here we were, ten passionate students sitting in the Australian War Memorial boardroom discussing the Frontier Wars with Dr Nelson. We had four main points: the Frontier Conflicts were "wars" or "warlike conflict"; the War Memorial should commemorate this; the War Memorial can commemorate this; and commemorating Frontier Wars in the War Memorial will help Australians come to terms with our past and further reconciliation.

Dr Nelson stuck to his guns and argued that the Frontier Wars do not sufficiently fit the characteristics of warfare. He was in strong agreement that this story should be told, but argued that the Memorial was not the place. Our very firm submission was that the Frontier Wars, although lacking official recognition and form, do contain all the war and warlike features necessary and we felt supported by the weight of literature by Australian historians.

The clock ran down and we came to our concluding statements. The result? Under Dr Nelson's directorship, the Australian War Memorial would not remember the Frontier Wars. With our arguments still clear in our mind and adrenaline levels high, it took all we could not to argue further. As we left, we discussed what had happened with Mr Michael Bell, Ngunnawal man and Indigenous Liaison Officer for the War Memorial. He contributed to the meeting, spent an hour with us beforehand inside the Memorial itself, and shared his thoughtful navigation of a complex issue. Dismayed, exasperated and exhausted our guns had fallen silent. Months of preparation and early morning rehearsals had come down to one hour and the result was clear. Or was it?

We de-briefed alongside Lake Burley Griffin where the common emotion was frustration. We were frustrated at the lack of depth that the meeting went into; we were more prepared, we had additional arguments and research to contribute. We were unsurprised, but frustrated. So we revisited our ambitions and reminded ourselves of our more realistic goals. We knew how much work and preparation we had put in. As we processed what had happened, we were increasingly positive about what we had achieved and optimistic for what lay ahead.

Our meeting with Dr Nelson made a small but positive contribution to the ongoing advocacy for the Frontier Wars to be included in the Australian War Memorial. Although immediate change did not occur, we added our voices to the many others fighting for change. Our passion, determination and arguments will resonate within the War Memorial. "Your meeting today makes my job easier", Mr Bell observed. Also, by sharing our experiences with family, friends, peers and Community we have ensured that the discussion continues. We can only hope that the War Memorial continues to receive similar visits and Dr Nelson continues to participate in similar discussions.

As we walked away, we pondered one final memento from Mr Bell, "You are forty years ahead and these conversations take time. You can't force people to agree." True, but we can keep the conversations going. We are ready.

Liz Parsons and Nadine Walker
Year 10 Students

Ten students travelled to Canberra: Tori Aston, Indira Courtness, Taylor Hosken, Rebekka Krause, Hannah Nouri, Elizabeth Parsons, Amabel Roebuck-Krautz, Clara Seibel, Issy Swatridge, Nadine Walker. In addition to their meeting with Dr Nelson, students also visited AIATSIS (Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies), the National Museum of Australia, Reconciliation Australia and the Tent Embassy.

Ryde Schools Spectacular

Stage Band 1 and Junior Dance successfully auditioned to perform at the Sydney Opera House as part of the Ryde Schools Spectacular. This event involves primary schools from the Ryde area with over 1000 performers.

This was a memorable experience for both groups and Noah Djordjevic from Year 10 performed a guitar solo with the primary schools choir and band.

Student Achievement

Congratulations to Mikko Zanker, Year 7 for being awarded NSW State Champion at the United Nations Youth Voice public speaking competition.

This is a massive achievement for Mikko and Killara High School. Mikko has put in an unfathomable amount of effort for the last four months preparing and re-scripting his speech as he's progressed further and further in this competition, out-performing students from both Public and Private schools across the state.

Mikko will be flying to Hobart to compete in the National finals. Congratulations on his success in this prestigious and extremely competitive National tournament.

Drama Production – The Best Invention Ever

Congratulations for the outstanding Drama production on Tuesday evening, The Best Invention Ever.

The production was directed by Year 10 and performed by the Junior Drama Ensemble comprising of students in Stage 4.

Besides the aim of thoroughly entertaining the audience of many families and staff, the performance was written with an insightful message within the program booklet which stated:

This collaboration has been such a wonderful experience for students to build friendships, enhance confidence and to learn fundamental lessons in commitment and responsibility. This captured the essence of this journey for these students.

Year 6 Gala Day

Approximately 160 Year 6 students from Beaumont Road, Lindfield East, Gordon East and Roseville Public Primary Schools attended the Year 6 Gala Day, aimed at beginning the integration and familiarisation process as these students transition into high school in 2017.

Selected Year 9 PASS students assisted in delivering a range of activities throughout the morning. A variety of game-based stations were set up for the students to enjoy - Newcombe Ball, Relay Races, Observation Ball and the Paralympic sport Sit Down Volleyball. After an initial session of icebreakers where students got to know each other and the staff alike, the Year 6 students were split into groups and then rotated amongst the various stations. This culminated with their inauguration into the infamous Killara High School tradition of Bompo Domp.

Highlights of the morning included a great all in rendition of The Nutbush and the final game of Bompo where the students got to face off the Year 9 PASS students and even some members of staff – an opportunity which they all relished. The students all left smiling and excited following the morning's activities, especially after having the opportunity to play and learn alongside staff and fellow students.

Lunchtime Chess

Since the start of Term 4 there have been a number of students in Years 7 and 8 playing CHESS at lunchtime. Two Year 7 students are the driving forces – Ayush Puri and Angus Ferguson. Our first competition was an elimination competition and the final game occurred last Friday on the 11 November. The talented winner was Year 8 student Theo Kloosterman.

Another competition is starting on Thursday lunchtime on 17 November. Chess takes place three times a week, and the school captains and prefects help with supervision of the games.

FICTION:

Anholt, Laurence. The Hypnotist

Pip is plucked from an orphanage and hired as a farm hand but Pip is black and the farmer and his wife are white and this is 1960's America where race defines you. Jack Morrow has left his native Ireland dreaming of a new life in the American South. Pip and Jack's lives become inextricably linked as the heat of racial tension builds to a terrifying storm.

Barr, Briony [and others] The Invisible War: A tale on two scales

While treating a patient with dysentery, Sister Annie Barnaby encounters a strain of lethal bacteria. As the invaders journey deep into her gut, the resident microbes must fight to survive... and Annie's life hangs in the balance. Created by an expert team of scientists, artists, educators, writers and historians, 'The Invisible War' is a graphic novel like no other.

Clark, Mary Higgins. I heard that song before

When Kay Lansing met wealthy widower Peter Carrington at a cocktail party, she was well aware of the rumours surrounding the mysterious death of his first wife ten years earlier. When the police arrive with a warrant for Peter's arrest in connection with a different death, Kay is determined to find the truth. But what Kay does not suspect is that this may cost her her life...

Combs, Sarah. The Light Fantastic

With tightly interwoven narratives told over the course of one unforgettable slice of time, The Light Fantastic is a tense, shocking and beautifully wrought exploration of the pain and pathos of a generation of teenagers balanced on the brink – and the hope of moving from the darkness of shame and isolation into the light of redemption.

Eglington, Tara. My best friend is a goddess

Sixteen-year-olds Emily and Adriana have been 'besties' since Year One. When Adriana returns during Year Ten, after having spent eighteen months overseas, she has gone from awkward to amazing, an utter goddess. Thankfully, Adriana is no different on the inside. But Emily just wishes that one guy, any guy, would want to get to know her for another reason other than being Adriana's best friend.

Fitzgerald, Sarah Moore. A very good chance

Minty follows the twisty – turny trees into Nettlebog. There she finds Ned Buckley – the moody, mysterious boy who never talks at school. As Minty's world disintegrates around her, she searches for refuge in Nettlebog, and discovers that Ned is able to ride wild horses and knows things about the human race that could save her...

Here I stand: Stories that speak for freedom

Short stories and poems exploring the human rights we enjoy today – and those for which we must fight.

Kane, Kim. When the lyrebird calls

When Madeleine is shipped off to stay with her eccentric grandmother for the holidays, she expects the usual visit. Instead, Madeleine tumbles back in time to 1900, where the wealthy Williamson family takes her into their home, Lyrebird Muse, and Madeleine must try to find a way to fit in.

Kingbolt, Z. F Into Tordon

Thirteen year old Beth has been waiting for weeks to play in the championship of her favourite online game, Tordon. She plays to win until her gaming nemesis Zane challenges her to a real-life risk that has them sucked into a strange world. Here they must push their skills to the limit just to survive.

McWatters, Nikki. Hexenhaus

In 1628, Veronica and her brother flee for their lives into the German woods after their father is burned at the stake.

At the dawn of the eighteenth century, Scottish maid Katherine is lured into political dissent after her parents are butchered for their beliefs. In present-day Australia, Paisley navigates her way through the burning torches of small-town gossip after her mother's new-age shop comes under scrutiny. A powerful novel about three young women caught in the hysteria of their own times:

Throsby, Holly. Goodwood

Goodwood is a small town where everyone knows everything about everyone. In 1992, Rosie White, the coolest girl in town, vanishes overnight. One week later, Goodwood's most popular resident sets off on a fishing trip and never comes home.

Goodwood is a compelling ride into a small community, torn apart by dark rumours and mystery.
